(Denver, CO - August 10, 2022) Fresh from her upcoming album, Denver-based artist/songwriter, Marisa Nikole, harnesses the power of revenge in her latest single, "Dangerous." now available on all streaming platforms.

The eclectic artist/songwriter creates from a place of fantasy with an aura of truth. Listeners are encapsulated by heavy blues/rock production, so much so, that the story line in "Dangerous." feels all too much like playing the villain in a horror film. Released July 2022, Marisa takes back the wheel of life after what feels like a brutal caging in her past. Vocal redemption shatters through the proverbial glass wall that she has been boxed in for too long. It is often the lived experiences which shape an artist and spark the inspiration to create in the first place. Marisa Nikole plays a protagonist who sets out to murder an ex-husband and leave without a trace.

"I was studying medicine at the time and writing my mid-term essay about Arsenic. I had this elaborate thought about how I could murder my ex-husband and ended up pausing on my mid-term paper to write Dangerous," she explains.

The song features a sensational delivery of hard-hitting bars from, Jay Triiple, a Denver-based Hip Hop artist who helps create the Alt-Pop fusion.

Marisa Nikole not only desires change in her music, she demands it. How she does this is through storytelling and exceptional lyrical delivery, production, and the overall vibe she shares on social media. While streaming her discography on Spotify, it's easy to be swept up in her soundscapes and live as the main character.

"I'm currently wrapping up my new album in the studio and will be dropping another EP in addition to the album," she says. Having just released her first music video, Marisa Nikole is riding high off of the 25 awards and nominations it holds in 15 different music festivals around the world. Supporters can help her compete in an online competition called the Opening Act, which is a voting-based competition. She currently holds 3rd place.
